

NEGRESS WHO SHOT HUSBAND FREED ON SELF DEFENSE PLEA

Mrs. Curry Offers Evidence to Show He Attacked Her

Following an array of oratory by Judge W. C. Hoacock that the defendant was justified in attempting to kill Rott Curry, negro, on the night of June 15, and as Mrs. Mable Curry, wife, went hysterically, Judge W. W. McClellan yesterday afternoon dismissed Mrs. Curry and announced that he believed the case should have been reversed and Scott Curry charged with assault.

Mrs. Curry had been charged with shooting him with her husband on June 15, having fired four shots at him. Testimony in the case, however, was that but one shot had taken effect. The wound in the left shoulder was a knife stab and not a bullet wound as had been supposed, according to the defendant.

Curry testified that his wife first confronted him with a pocket knife, stabbing him in the left shoulder, and had grabbed the knife, he said, and then she had reached for her automatic revolver which she carried in a shoulder bag and shot at him four times, only one bullet hitting him. The only bullet wound he had, he said, was in the left leg. The shooting took place at First street and Tijeras avenue.

"I laid two days and nights in my house without anything to eat," Mrs. Curry said on the stand, "and had to met some of my society members to help me out."

She said that her husband had come up behind her and struck her, cursing her the same time. "He would have shot me in one eye if I had not turned the gun and shot him," the defendant said.

"What were you doing with that gun?" asked District Attorney Ernest H. Glare.

"I was going to seek it," she replied.

"The defendant then explained that he was going to give it to a friend to seek for her."

"Did you ever shoot at your husband before?" asked the district attorney.

"No, sir."

"Not in El Paso?" the attorney inquired.

"I was in this state before," the defendant answered, "and what did not take place in this state does not concern you here."

Later when questioned by Attorney Hoacock Mrs. Curry explained that she had shot at her husband in El Paso after he had beat her with a telephone and had shot her in the left arm.

According to testimony given by two eye witnesses, Curry on the night of the shooting approached his wife from behind and after swearing at her choked her, knocking her down, the witnesses said.

One witness said that after Mrs. Curry strangled her husband, the two jumped on the gun. When Mrs. Curry pulled it, the witness said, started to walk away. After she fired three shots at him, no-taking effect, it was said, Curry grabbed his wife again, throwing her down.

The defendant said that while she was down, her husband pointed the gun at her and would not stop her from doing so but had not turned the gun as it was fired. The bullet went in his leg, she said.

Following the closing arguments of the case, Mrs. Curry still crying and hysterical, arose and related some of her trials, the attorneys and judge being unable to stop her.

Vernon, Tex.—For three years I suffered untold agony each month with pain in my sides. I found only temporary relief in doctor's medicine or some other thing else I took until my husband saw an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I mentioned it to a neighbor and she told me she had taken it with good results and advised me to try it. I was then in bed part of the time and my doctor said I would have to be operated on, but we decided to try the Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. Conviction of Two Men in Cattle Theft Case Is Upheld

RANTA FE, June 25.—Conviction of Jack Curry and Doc Curry, in the district court in Guadalupe, has been affirmed by the supreme court in an opinion by Chief Justice Roberts Justices Parker and Raynolds concurring.

The defendants were tried under an indictment that charged them in the first count with larceny, and in the second count with the unlawful purchase of four head of sheep, which they knew the seller had no right to dispose of.

At the opening of the trial the defense demanded that the state be compelled to say under which count of the indictment the trial would proceed. This motion was overruled, but at the close of the state's case in chief, the state announced it would proceed on the second count.

The supreme court sustained also the conviction that had been rendered at Valencia county in this case. Nicolas Mares and Manuel Chacon were convicted of the larceny of five head of meat cattle. The other two counts concerning the holding of the supreme court, on two important counts, follows:

"I, Venie, like any other fact is a case may be proven by circumstantial evidence."

The court of former jeopardy must be interpreted as the earlier opportunity and if not, it is waived and cannot be raised for the first time after verdict.

RAISIN' A CHECK

"Once a charming young woman presented a small check at my window," said the speaker at a recent bakers' convention. "She was transparently innocent and had no acquaintance in the bank, nor any letters or other papers with her. I asked her if she had a handkerchief or some article of jewelry marked with her name or initials. After a moment's deep thought, her face brightened and she asked:

"Would the initial garter buckle do?"

"Did she get the money?" asked a voice in a tone of detached scientific inquiry from the back of the room. "More coincidens propter," said the speaker, musingly, "that a bank's relations with its clients often are highly confidential."

MAN FOUND DEAD IN ROOM IN HOTEL

Oklahoman Was Suffering from Tuberculosis, Coroner's Jury Finds

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 25.—Jack Dempsey claims he isn't afraid of any man in the world, but he was put to flight last night by the diminutive sergeant-at-arms of the district court, David Brown, when the latter met Dempsey yesterday with the announcement that he held a summons for his appearance in court next Wednesday.

Dempsey turned and ran. He did not stop until he got into the grounds of his training camp.

"Don't let that man in," he yelled to ground guards and they bolted the gates.

Brown cooled his heels outside and then told the court what had happened. The summons is a result of a suit brought by a Philadelphia physician for $300, alleged to be part of his bill for an operation performed on Dempsey.

Wife in Divorce Suit Says Husband Robbed Boy's Bank

Petition for divorce from Horace B. Graves was filed in the district court yesterday by Ruby Graves, in which she alleges that he has treated her cruelly and failed to support her and their children.

The petition claims that he struck her several times, took her wrist watch and rings and robbed the boy and his 8-year-old boy while he and his mother were at Sunday school. Last Monday, Graves and son have left her and sent for his truck.

The couple were married at George's Creek, Texas on January 1, 1929, and have two children, a boy and a girl 19, according to the complaint. Mrs. Graves asks for the custody of the children, alimony of $100 a month, and the household goods, valued at $500.

She will go to Paris for a rest after which, she said, she would continue her work.
